

WE AIM FOR YOUR BUSINESS

We want to make the garments you wear. So do lots of other tailors and ready-made clothing stores. But we have a proposition that cannot fail to interest you if you will spare a little time for investigation.

Our assortment is larger and our prices are lower than you will find in most tailor shops. Then, too, we protect our customers absolutely from any loss, because, if a garment doesn't fit, it is ours, not yours, and if linings do not outwear cloth, we replace them free of cost.

Our line of Suits and Overcoats is now at its best. All the new Plaids, Mixtures, Stripes and Overplaids are well represented in Worsteds, Cassimeres and Cheviots. The new Browns are here in profusion.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester, the latter, Miss Helen Zimmigman, of Cincinnati, will take Washington in on their tour of the world. The Duke of Newcastle will enliven the season at the Virginia Hot Springs, where he will this week be the guest of Mr. J. J. Van Allen, of Newport.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN

Washington Jockey Club Stake
for Three-Year-Old Steeplechasers.

BRILLIANT AND RADIANT

The Bloomingdale Jumpers—Dr. Kerr's Young Choristers.
Allen Beard.

It will be of interest to both breeders and owners of cross-country performers in Maryland and Virginia to note that the Washington Jockey Club has announced a stake for three-year-old steeplechasers to be decided at its forthcoming fall meeting. This action will at once prove popular and will be well received by owners, as tending toward the early development of steeplechasers, in which particular field it seems that Virginia breeders of thoroughbreds are likely to receive substantial returns for years to come. This has been demonstrated by the careers of such well known performers as Lord of Clover, one of the highest class chasers America has ever seen, and but for his untimely retirement this season would have been taken to England. Charward, who ranked as the best horse in California last winter; Imperialist, J. E. Lane's perennial winner, and others of lesser note. The conditions of the event announced by the Washington Jockey Club follow: "Stake for three-year-old cross-country horses, pure blood, added weight for age and sex allowed. Horses that have never started, three pounds. Ten dollars to enter, $10 to name, and $10 to start. Entrance, all fees, and $10 to winner, $20 to second horse, and $10 to third."
Castle Hill Farm's stable of show horses, owned and exhibited at the Virginia Horse Show this season by Mrs. Gertrude Rivers Potts, of Cobham, has been remarkably successful, and no horse taken down the line was more admired than Brilliant, brown filly, 3, by Arnon, thoroughbred son of Imp. Charaxus, and Wayward, by Bolus, dam by a horse called Revenue, doubtless a descendant of the famous stallion of that name, owned by John Minor Botts. Brilliant won eleven blues at four shows, and during the season has carried off twenty ribbons in as many classes. Radiant, the brown filly, 2, is a full sister to Brilliant, and like her is possessed of exquisite quality and finish. They are driven double now by Mrs. Potts and make a charming pole team. Brilliant and Firelight, the chestnut mare by Torchlight, will be shown at Lynchburg and then brought to Richmond, where both mares are entered along with a couple of heavy-weight hunters. Both of the latter were sired by Arnon and are full brother and sister to Bachelor. One is called Benedict and the other Speciale.

Henry C. Beattie, vice-president of the Richmond Horse Show Association, M. F. H., of the Deep Run Hunt Club, and patron of outdoor sports, is a busy man these fine autumn days at Bloomingdale Stock Farm, where he has a stable of hunters, jumpers, and steeplechasers. Mr. Beattie schools the horses himself and prize winners of real class have been developed by his clever hand. He has now about a dozen head in his stable. Among the lot is Elvador and the big grey son of Elvador and Kitz was never in better shape. Pablo, a chestnut gelding, 7, by Abd El Kader, Jr., is developing into a fine heavy-weight hunter, and he is well thought of. Carnation, a bay gelding, 2, is by Rover, the sire of that good high jumper Buck, a winner at the big shows and owned by Mr. A. E. Delrick, of New York. The thoroughbred division of the stable includes Deep Run, the bay gelding, by Kasson, dam Faustina, by Bolus, and Southanna,

SOCIAL LIFE AT THE NATION'S CAPITOL

By GRACE PORTER HOPKINS.

(Special Correspondence of The Times-Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 1.—The Archbishop and Mrs. Davidson have paid Washington their long-promised visit, been feted as become their station, and departed, leaving another brilliant chapter in the social history of the capital city.

Clad in the regular clerical coat, bishop's apron, knickerbockers and leggings, the primate was at all times a picturesque figure. Indeed, with truth, it may be said, he came, he saw, and with his kindly eyes and friendly speech, he conquered.

Mrs. Davidson was a surprise to every one and her costumes were almost a seven days' wonder. Instead of the stately English dame, of years to correspond with her distinguished husband, society found a young woman, who affects bright-colored dresses, cut in the latest mode and trimmed almost to the point of being grotesque.

The open-air service of Mount St. Albans, on Sunday, was easily the event of their visit, illustrating as it did in many ways, the sentiment of "Hills Across the Sea." The King of England was prayed for in the same breath that invoked a blessing upon the President of the United States and all others in authority.

Besides the dinner to the Archbishop and his wife, President Roosevelt has signified his permanent return to the White House, by resuming his usual informal entertaining at luncheons and dinners. Among the guests have been, Dr. Charles Wagner, the eminent Parle evangelist; Prof. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, President of the University of California; Count Albert Apponyi, President of the Austrian Chamber of Deputies; Hon. W. W. Thomson, Jr., U. S. Minister to Sweden; Rev. F. H. Wall, D. D., rector of the Church of the Holy Rosary, N. Y.; James Jeffrey Roche, editor of the "Boston Pilot"; Hon. T. St. John Gaffney and Mr. Henry W. Taft, of New York. Several of the cabinet officers have also been invited to join the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at luncheon to meet the delegates to the Interparliamentary Union.

Despite this generous beginning, it is said there will be little show of formality at the White House for some weeks to come. Mrs. Roosevelt has as her guest, Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, of Long Island, and with her is enjoying shopping expeditions nearly every morning. The ladies may be seen daily walking to and from the White House, frequently stopping en route, to view an art exhibition. Sometimes they are accompanied by Miss Ethel, but more often they go alone.

The Roosevelt's example of an early return has been followed by many of the official and diplomatic set, and their children were entered in school at the beginning of the session. Perhaps nowhere else have the public schools so large a patronage of prominent parents. And according to the latest report of Dr. W. T. Harris, United States Commissioner of Education, no where are there such schools as at the National Capitol.

If the schools are good, the class of children is better, and the opportunities afforded by the government scientific bureaus, libraries and museums, are the best. The pupils come from homes of men, selected from various communities all over the world, because of some peculiar fitness for public responsibility, and in a way they embody the ideals of those homes. The system of the schools is complete for kindergarten to normal training, and the color line is strictly drawn in every department of the work.

Besides the President, some of the patrons having children in Washington public schools are Senators Lon, of Kansas; Clay of Ga.; Simmons and Overman, of North Carolina; Cockrell, of Mo.; and DeBois, of Idaho. Representatives Rixey and Jones, of Virginia; Otjen, Weisse and Minor, of Wisconsin; Griggs and Lester, of Ga.; Prince and Stirling, of Ill.; Champ Clark, of Mo.; Charles Darling, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; S. N. D. North, Director of the Census; James H. Garfield, Geo. B. Cortelyou, C. D. Walcott, General A. W. Greely, U. S. A.; Frank G. Carpenter, Minister Joaquim Calvo, of Costa Rica; P. P. Baumgarten, Austrian Embassy, Kwaik Pung, of the Chinese Legation, Antonio M. Itivero, of the Cuban Legation.

Miss Mildred Picklin, of Alexandria, Va., has won the Leneman scholarship in the University of Music and Dramatic Art. The first Unschuld scholarship was awarded to Miss Florence Robinson, of Washington, and the second one, to Miss Katherine Louise McNeal, the child pianist, who gave a whole recital of good numbers entirely from memory. In a studio recital of Mr. B. Frank Gehret, last spring. The Newport Cottage scholarship is still open to competition. This scholarship is the result of two piano recitals given at Newport last summer by Miss Von Unschuld, Court Pianist to the Queen of Romania. Miss Unschuld is well known in Washington, where she has frequently been the guest of the Austrian Ambassador and Baroness Hengelmüller von Hengervar.

The Italian Ambassador and Baroness Mayor des Planches, who came to town last week, especially to entertain the Italian delegates to the Interparliamentary Union, have decided to remain here instead of returning to Atlantic City for the fall season, as was their first intention. They gave a handsomely appointed dinner on Monday evening and a luncheon on Tuesday, for their countrymen and a few other guests. Mr. Ferruccio Vitale, of the Italian Army, has been elected an honorary member of the National Society of the Army of the Philippines, at the suggestion of General Charles King, U. S. A. General Vitale has represented his government as military attaché at the Embassy in this city for some years, and is one of the most popular members of the diplomatic corps.

Baroness Speck von Sternburg has, as her guest, Countess de Faramond, nee Miss Ivay Langham, of Kentucky, whom she met at the Naval Attache of the French Embassy was an event of the late spring. The German Ambassador stopped in Washington a few days this week, on route to St. Louis, where he will make an address on "German Day" at the Fair. The Baroness will remain at the summer Embassy at Lenox, until the return of the Baron, when they will remove to their Massachusetts Avenue home for the winter.

The British Ambassador was the guest of General Crozier on the Gretchen, when the Archbishop and his party went to Mount Vernon, in the early part of the week. Sir Mortimer, who came to Washington especially to meet the prelate and to participate in the courtesies extended to the latter, returned to Lenox on the same train that took the Archbishop to New York. Lady Durand and Miss Josephine are still at the summer embassy enjoying the out-door sports in

She was accompanied by her children and her sister, Miss Agnes Bryant.

Mr. George A. Paff, formerly of this city, but now of Sharon, Penn., is the guest of his brother, Mayor Frederick J. Paff, at his home, on North Patrick street.

Mrs. George Keys is visiting her brother in Huntington, Indiana. Before her return she will attend a meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy, at St. Louis.

BEDFORD CITY.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
BEDFORD CITY, Oct. 1.—A number of young ladies styling themselves the "Tacky Set," gave a party Tuesday evening at Belmont. None but those attired in the most tacky of tacky costumes were admitted to the festivities. Quaint and ludicrous indeed were the results of the inventive ingenuity of the guests and the get-ups were rich and rare.

The fair patronesses of the occasion were Misses Louise Wharton, Maude Scott, Sadie Tucker, Florie Clayton, Janey von Roy, Mattie Watts, Mary Tulle, Henrietta Quinby, Annie Lowry, Annie Berry, Mary Blackford, Jo. Moore, Annie Hawkins, Elissa Mosby, and Miss Griffin.

The cake walk was danced in a style in harmony with the grotesque costumes, and many old-fashioned games added to the fun of the evening. The refreshments were also of lucky variety, served in most approved tacky style.

The prize for the most perfect costume among the ladies was awarded Miss Annie Berry, while Mr. Ellis Hall won the voted the most tacky of the gentlemen.

Wednesday evening the Misses Griffin entertained most charmingly a number of friends in honor of their guests, Miss
